

You have got to be kidding! How can the radio owners spend millions of dollars on lobbying congress when they should be spending money on how to make their products more competitive. XM Satellite as well as Sirius are going to promote competition in the radio industry and encourage new and different forms of communication to the public to keep our nations technologies 10 years ahead of all other countries! It would be very disheartening to find out that Congress is swayed so easily if they take the shortsighted approach to competition and side with the radio owners. Keep competition alive and well and keep our nation strong. Greg Harth
